

THE EVERGREEN INVITATIONAL

The aftermath of Hurricane Ike made for a rainy day of show jumping at the second annual Evergreen Invitational equestrian Grand Prix on Saturday, September 13. Guests braved the weather to travel to MK Pritzker's farm in Bristol, Wisconsin to watch top riders from around the country, browse the Promenade of Shops and enjoy a lunch buffet under the sheltering tents. The poor weather conditions forced the $75,000 Grand Prix to be cut short, resulting in no final round of jumping. Instead, there was a three-way tie between three finalists. The event raised $900,000 for the Prentice Women's Hospital of Northwestern Memorial Hospital, which will help fund innovative patient care programs. ■ Rebecca Michuda •
